

Bud Smith, the Boy Who Does Stunts

WHEN THE CIRCUS MAN SAW THE STUNTS HE COULD DO. HE HANDED BUD SMITH A FREE PASS FOR TWO

THE boy who does stunts
Was nearly stumped once
When the circus refused him a pass.
Said he: "They don't know
I can queer their old show
By performing out here on the grass."

HE proceeded to do
All the stunts that he knew,
Till the people who gathered to see
Declared they'd not go
To the circus man's show,
Since a better one outside was free.

WHEN the circus man saw
That the crowd was no more
Interested in what he'd to say,
He took off his tile,
And he said, with a smile:
"Be so kind as to walk in, I pray."

WHEN Bud Smith got inside,
He noted with pride
That no one could do stunts such as his;
And the ringmaster said
As he patted Bud's head:
"You're the best acrobat in the biz."
